

Dependency Injection (DI)

It is a mechanism where the framework automatically provides the required dependencies — without creating them manually.

Why DI is important?

- It makes the code reusable and clean
- It makes testing easier
- It promotes loose coupling (classes don't tightly depend on each other)
- It improves readability and maintainability

